

ACCESSORIES CHRISTMAS GIFT GUIDE

Swissvoice CH01

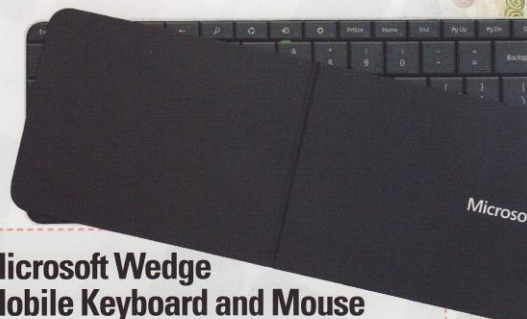

£40, iwantoneofthose.co.uk

Sick of trying to hold a slippery iPhone under your ear while at work? Or do you just want to look very cool in an old fashioned sort of way? Swissvoice's latest connects directly to a mobile phone, PC or tablet for a more stylish and comfortable conversation - perfect for Skype or general phone calling. No boffin-y bluetooth headsets here please. It also comes in orange, blue and green - and for the full-on Apple nerds - pure white.

Energenie Chargenie

£25, energenie4u.co.uk

Sick of the accessories market being dominated by various Apple dongles? Here's a BlackBerry, Android and Windows Phone exclusive, the Chargenie. Essentially a spare battery, its gel pad design clamps to the back of any smartphone, but is also easy to remove once charging is finished. The charger's flexible centre spine allows the battery to bend and follow the handset's contours for a secure fit.

Microsoft Wedge Mobile Keyboard and Mouse

£80 (keyboard), £70 (mouse), microsoft.com/hardware/en-gb

As anyone who has tried to get work done on a tablet knows, it's hopeless with an onscreen keyboard. Microsoft's latest not only comes in a lovely metal frame with proper sturdy keys, but its case folds into a solid stand for the tablet screen. Currently the best option for iPad or Microsoft Surface users (see review on page 40). The Wedge Mouse won't work with an iPad, but it is perfect for any laptop, good for four way scrolling and then slip it into your pocket.
